

Public lighting in Berlin

A European capital with an exemplary moderate light pollution

Visual impressions

August 2019

Introduction

Pictures taken in Berlin 30th and 31st of August, 2019, with a Canon G9X MkII, on manual mode, at 50mm f4 1/8s 800iso, WB daylight.

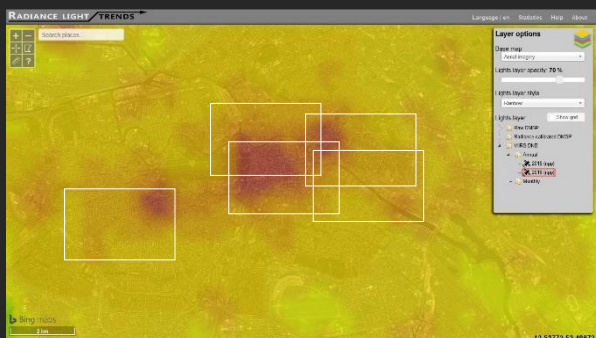

Original files format: JPEG highest quality 5472×3648.

Pictures appearance is very close to the visual impressions within the Berliner streets.
(Pictures taken in Paris, France, following the same protocol are available at this link)

The project is intended to show the moderate light pollution from the German capital compared to any other European capitals.

As a matter of fact, the captures below, from <https://lighttrends.lightpollutionmap.info>, show the luminance ratio between the French and German capitals : about a simple to double luminance ratio between the two cities, according to the classical false color scale of the light pollution atlas from Falchi and al.

Ratio to natural brightness	Artificial brightness ($\mu\text{cd}/\text{m}^2$)	Color
0.64–1.28	111–223	Green
1.28–2.56	223–445	Yellow
2.56–5.12	445–890	Orange
5.12–10.2	890–1780	Red
